It is reported that LUNG Yun and LU Han, former governors of Yunnan Province, are under close surveillance in Kunming and that Communists are putting pressure upon them to use their influence to pacify natives who are in rebellion against the Communist Government. Although both LUNG Yun and LU Han are related to the native Lolo tribes by blood, it is believed that they cannot pacify the rebellious elements from their places of confinement in Kunming. One one-half of the population of Yunnan are native tribesmen who have always maintained their personal freedom under the Chinese and it is believed that they will never submit to Communist regimentation.
